About the Organizers

Malmö University (MAU)

Malmö University was founded in 1998. Over the years the university has developed a profile that is characterized by global engagement, community involvement and a multidisciplinary and challenge-based approach in education, research and collaboration. Widening participation and expanding inclusion in higher education are important aspects of the university's involvement in the community that enrich the diversity of the academic culture and learning. The expansion of knowledge in teaching and research is often the result of processes undertaken in collaboration with stakeholders in various sectors of society, such as the public sector, the community sector and trade and industry. Different forms and methods of participation, co-creation, co-production and shared learning are used in both research and education when dealing with questions posed by important and complex social issues.

Malmö Institute for Studies of Migration, Diversity and Welfare (MIM)

Malmö Institute for Studies of Migration, Diversity and Welfare (MIM) is an international research centre with a multidisciplinary profile and a strong international presence. The aim is to develop and exchange new knowledge on international migration and ethnic diversity, and to build networks for collaboration and dissemination beyond academic and domestic borders.

MIM is directed by Professor Pieter Bevelander and consists of a core of senior and junior researchers and a large international network of affiliated researchers. MIM welcomes international scholars who wish to locate or undertake parts of their research projects in Sweden. The Willy Brandt Guest Professorship is a fully financed research position at MIM that hosts prominent researchers from all over the world.

Research

MIM was established in January 2007 with the goal of strengthening Malmö University's migration research profile. Further to this, MIM is also envisaged as a platform to expand Malmö University's international networks and build bridges between the university and non-academic actors.

The research conducted at MIM is multidisciplinary and is pursued in collaboration with international partners. The research is mainly financed by external funding from national and international research councils and foundations.

The Migration Seminar

The Migration Seminar is a forum for junior and senior researchers on migration related issues. It attracts presenters and participants with different academic and professional backgrounds, and functions as a regular meeting place for migration researchers at Malmö University. Research activities include paper and project presentations as well as panel debates and project planning. The seminar also hosts the Willy Brandt Professor presentations.

Networks and Activities

MIM organises workshops and conferences, and is represented in various organisations for migration related research such as the IMISCOE board, the NMR board and the Metropolis steering committee. MIM is also an important partner in MILSA, a research platform for migration and health.

Welcome by the IMISCOE Coordinator

Prof.dr. Peter Scholten

A warm welcome to the 16th Annual Conference of IMISCOE. This is a very special conference for the Network, as this year we celebrate our 15th anniversary. On April 1st 2004 the IMISCOE Network took off as a consortium of 19 universities and research institutes from across Europe. Today the Network has grown to over 50 member institutes and around 1000 individual members from within as well as beyond Europe. A great achievement for a Network that has evolved into a Community of migration scholars.

In these 15 years IMISCOE has played its humble role in the development of migration research. I strongly believe that we can see clear traces of IMISCOE in the internationalization and growing interdisciplinarity of the field. With the coming of age of IMISCOE and of the field of migration studies, a conference on conceptual and methodological approaches is very timely.

Another first for IMISCOE is that we are back at a place where an IMISCOE conference was once held before, in 2013. The Malmö Institute for Studies of Migration, Diversity and Welfare (MIM) is one of the longest serving members of IMISCOE. We owe MIM much gratitude for so much devotion to the Network!

Now it is up to all of you to shape the next 15 years for the network. I hope you can find the inspiration during the conference to shape the agenda of migration studies. And do feel empowered to initiate promising research lines and build research groups in the IMISCOE community.

IMISCOE is also building further on the network for the years to come. The IMISCOE 2020 strategy is already being implemented, preparing the network for future. This includes a revision of the IMISCOE research infrastructure (Standing Committees, Research Initiatives), a thorough redesign of our webpresence, a first step towards globalization of the network, a revised strategy for the Spring and Annual Conferences and a new initiative to increase IMISCOE's involvement in science-society dialogues.

Enjoy the conference!

Peter Scholten

Welcome to the 16th Annual Conference of IMISCOE in Malmö, June 26–28, 2019

Prof. Pieter Bevelander

On behalf of the organizing committee, and the Malmö Institute for Studies of Migration, Diversity and Welfare (MIM), Malmö University it is my pleasure to welcome you all to the 16th Annual Conference of IMISCOE in the heart of Malmö, June 26–28, 2019.

This year's IMISCOE conference focuses on the conceptual and methodological approaches for understanding the growing diversity and complexity of international migration and its consequences for sending and receiving societies. The conference program covers a variety of themes and topics, from fundamental issues to practical applications of migration research. We are very delighted to bring together a multi-disciplinary group of scholars to present and exchange their recent research during three days of sessions, workshops and informal exchange. We are also honored to welcome Professor Douglas Massey and Professor Bridget Anderson who will share their perspectives on recent migration policy and new directions for migration studies in their keynote addresses. Panelists offering comments on keynote presentations include Professor Ellen Percy Kraly, Professor Jamie Winders, Professor Miri Song and Professor Magdalena Nowicka.

We are looking forward to a productive and stimulating meeting, and wish you all a pleasant stay in Malmö!

Sincerely, Prof. Pieter Bevelander

Director, Malmö Institute for Studies of Migration, Diversity and Welfare, Malmö University

Prof. Douglas S. Massey

Doug S. Massey is Henry G. Bryant Professor of Sociology and Public Affairs, in the Woodrow Wilson School, Princeton University. He is the current president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Philosophical Society. Massey's research focuses on international migration, race and housing, discrimination, education, urban poverty, and stratification. He is the author of a number of influential books, such as "American apartheid", "Worlds in Motion", "Brokered Boundaries", among others. He has accepted the invitation to give an opening Keynote speech for the conference on 26 June (see the program below).

Immigration Policy Mismatches and Counter-productive Outcomes: Unauthorized Migration to the U.S. in Two Eras

Douglas S. Massey

The world appears to be moving into a new era of international migration during which the gap between the policies needed to manage the flows and those enacted in practice is likely to widen. Whereas in the late 20th century most immigrants were motivated to move by a desire to improve their economic welfare by accessing jobs and wages in richer countries, in the early 21st century immigration are increasingly motivated by a desire to escape threats linked to climate change, violence, and state failures, yielding very different patterns of migration and selectivity. The demonization of immigrants and the framing of immigration as a threat to citizens in the developed world, which was common at the end of the 20th century is likely to become more pronounced in the 21st century. Using the United States as an example, this paper details the policy mismatches between the underlying realities of migration and the policies enacted in response to the characteristic migratory flows in both eras, both of which are associated with dysfunctional outcomes that in theory might be ameliorated or avoided with appropriate policy solutions but which in practice are not likely to be applied in an age of rising populism and xenophobia.

Panelists

Prof. Dr. Magdalena Nowicka

Magdalena Nowicka is Head of Department Integration at the German Center for Integration and Migration (DeZIM e.V.) in Berlin and Professor for Migration and Transnationalism at the Humboldt University in Berlin. She holds a doctoral degree in Sociology from the Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich (2005). She currently leads the project “Revis(u)aling Intersectionality”, funded by the Volkswagen Stiftung. Previously, she led the project „TRANSFORMIG. Transforming Migration – Transnational Transfer of Multicultural Habitus“ funded by the ERC Starting Grant Scheme (2013–2018) as well as various projects on Polish migration to Germany. She is member of the German Sociological Association, Council for Migration, diverse research networks, advisory boards of international journals (ex. Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies, Advances in Research: Migration and Society), and she is alumna of the German Young Academy.

Prof. Dr. Ellen Percy Kraly

Ellen Percy Kraly holds the William R. Kenan, Jr. Professor of Geography and Environmental Studies at Colgate University. Throughout 2019, she is serving as the Willy Brandt Guest Professor in International Migration and Ethnic Relations, Malmö University. She is Chair of the Scientific Panel on International Migration of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population and is co-chairing a workshop on the demography of refugees for the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, Committee on Population. She is former editor of the International Migration Review. Her published scholarship has addressed the demography of refugee and forced migration, relationship between immigration and US population and environment, emigration, international migration statistics, immigrant incorporation, and population data systems and human rights. She was awarded an honorary doctorate from Curtin University, Perth, Australia recognizing her work to return Aboriginal artwork to Western Australia.

Maria Baganha Award Ceremony

The winner of the IMISCOE Maria Ioannis Baganha Dissertation Award 2019 is: Kristina Bakkær Simonsen

Her dissertation entitled: “Do They Belong? Host National Boundary Drawing and Immigrants’ Identificational Integration” was defended at Aarhus University on 8 December 2017. (http://politica.dk/fileadmin/politica/Dokumenter/ph.d.-afhandlinger/kristina\_bakkaer.pdf).

The award ceremony will take place during the Imiscoe conference in Malmö on Friday, 28 June.

Do the ways in which nations define ‘us’ and ‘them’ matter for the degree to which immigrants feel part of their new society, and if so, how? The dissertation investigates this question by studying the effects of host national boundary drawing on immigrants’ sense of national belonging. Theoretically, the dissertation contributes to the literature in the field by developing a model that explicates the process through which immigrants should be affected by the host nation’s boundaries, placing particular emphasis on immigrants’ boundary perceptions as the crucial link.

The steps in this model are examined in four empirical articles, using quantitative and qualitative data and methods. Empirically, the dissertation sheds light on the types of boundaries that matter for immigrants’ belonging. In particular, it shows that immigrants are affected by the informal boundaries drawn by host populations and in political rhetoric but not by the formal boundaries drawn through citizenship policy. In addition, through inductive analysis of in-depth interviews, the dissertation contributes to nuancing the very concept of belonging, strengthening our understanding of how it is constructed, affected and challenged in boundary processes. In synthesis, the dissertation gives a nuanced account of the links between boundaries and belonging and attests to the dimensions of power involved in constraining and claiming national membership in contemporary Western societies. The dissertation will be of interest to anyone concerned with one of the greatest challenges of our time: how to integrate new citizens into established national communities.

Kristina Bakkær Simonsen received her PhD in Political Science from Aarhus University in December 2017. She holds an MSc in Political Science from the same department and an MSc in Comparative Politics (specialisation in Nationalism and Ethnicity) from the London School of Economics and Political Science. She is now Assistant Professor at Aarhus University. Kristina's research targets the intersection of identity, politics, and belonging in relation to immigrant integration issues – from the point of view of minorities and majorities alike. Her work has been published in top political science journals, as well as top field journals.

About the Maria Baganha Award

The IMISCOE Research Network has awarded the Maria Ioannis Baganha Distinguished Dissertation Award annually since 2010 to stimulate and recognise excellent PhD research in the field of migration, integration and social cohesion in Europe. The competition is open to all PhD recipients whose dissertations were defended within the 24-month period before the submission deadline (early February each year). Applicants are invited to apply on their own behalf, or may be nominated by their dissertation supervisors.

Prof. Bridget Anderson

Bridget Anderson is Professor of Mobilities, Migration and Citizenship at the University of Bristol. She was previously the Research Director of the Centre on Migration, Policy and Society (COMPAS) at the University of Oxford. Bridget explored the tension between labor market flexibilities and citizenship rights and pioneered an understanding of the functions of immigration in key labor market sectors. Her interest in labor demand has meant an engagement with debates about trafficking and modern day slavery, which in turn led to an interest in state enforcement and deportation, and in the ways immigration controls increasingly impact on citizens as well as on migrants. Bridget has worked closely with migrants' organizations, trades unions and legal practitioners at local, national and international level. She has accepted the invitation to give a keynote speech at the conference closing plenary on 28 June (see the program below).

New Directions in Migration Studies: towards methodological de-nationalism

Bridget Anderson, University of Bristol

Most academics, particularly social scientists, are excited when their area of interest features in the media especially if they are working on issues related to racism, class and global inequality. These subjects do not air as often as they should, with one exception: when they are framed in terms of migration. Indeed, scholars of citizenship and migration to are more likely to feel – why do they insist on talking about ‘migration’? After all, the history of the world is unavoidably a history of mobility. Beginning with the movement of early humans from Africa the movement of people has shaped, reinforced and undermined social relations and institutions for thousands of years. The idea that migration is a peculiarly contemporary issue is consonant with global histories of nomadism, trade, colonialism and so on, only because, while people have indeed always moved, they have not always ‘migrated’. And the story we are told about migration today is bleak.

It is a tale of unparalleled movement and huge demographic change that presents a direct threat to sovereignty, security and national identity. In Europe migration is seen to pose a 'tragedy of commons' for national welfare states and scarce city resources. Scholarship has often sought to rebut or at least interrogate political claims that migration is of its nature a negative process and to nuance policy makers' and the general public's understandings of migration, but hostility to migrants seems to have increased despite our best efforts, and the massive growth in migration research, research centres, journals, networks and post graduate courses. Indeed, perhaps we are experiencing not an 'age of migration' but an age of migration research.

I am always impressed by how seriously many colleagues take our responsibility to develop good research, and to relate with integrity to the many different political actors and stakeholders who are active in this field. I want to take the opportunity of being among colleagues who know the field to take stock, to think about why migration research matters, and how we can make it of more political relevance. I want to think about how we can study human mobility without turning it into a problem.

I'm going to begin by outlining the epistemological we face, and how scholarship has identified it and sought to respond. I then will propose an approach I'm calling 'methodological denationalism'. I'll explain what I think that is and offer some thoughts on what it might look like, suggesting that key to it might be, firstly thinking about the relation between migration and race, and secondly but relatedly, 'migrantizing' the citizen. This is not a fully fledged proposal, but I hope that it will help develop intellectual tools fit for our times.

Panelists

Prof. Jamie Winders

Jamie Winders is Professor of Geography in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. She is best known for her interdisciplinary work on international migration, as well as her contributions to geography's engagements with race, labor, and social reproduction. Jamie is Editor-in-Chief of the International Migration Review, the flagship journal in migration studies, and Associate Editor of cultural geographies. Much of her research focuses on the interactions between changing patterns of immigrant settlement and racial/cultural politics, particularly in the context of new immigrant destinations in a domestic and an international context. She holds a PhD from the University of Kentucky and joined the Syracuse University faculty in 2004.

Prof. Miri Song

Miri Song is Professor of Sociology at the University of Kent, England. Her research interests include multiracial people, race and racisms, ethnic identities and migration. Her most recent book is Multiracial Parents: Mixed Race Families, Generational Change and the Future of Race (NYU Press 2017). She is currently working on a Russell Sage Foundation funded project, 'The Racial Identities and Life Choices of Mixed Heritage People in the US' (with Carolyn Liebler, University of Minnesota) – which compares the experiences and pathways of part Asian, part Black, and part American Indian people in different parts of the USA.

“Meet the Authors” @ IMISCOE 2019

Annual Conference, Malmö

Thursday, June 27
11.45–13.00
Niagara, A0306

For the third year in a row, the Editorial Committee of the IMISCOE Book Series and Springer are hosting a short event during the Annual Conference where some of our authors whose book got published in the past twelve months can discuss their publication with conference participants. Rather than a classic book presentation, this event is more similar to a roundtable discussion where authors respond to discussants’ comments on the main features of their book and the audience is explicitly invited to take part in the discussion.

Schedule and participants

Meet the Journal Editors

Friday, June 28

12.15–13.30

Niagara, Auditorium B1

In this session, editors from four prominent migration journals will share their perspectives on recent research in the field of migration:

- Jamie Winders, Editor in Chief, International Migration Review
- Paul Statham, Editor in Chief, Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies
- Alan Gamlen, Editor in Chief, Migration Studies
- Peter Scholten, Editor in Chief, Comparative Migration Studies

This is a great opportunity to meet the editors, and learn more about their journals. They will also provide tips on how to succeed in publishing manuscripts. The session will be chaired by Pieter Bevelander (MIM Director).

About IMISCOE

IMISCOE (International Migration, Integration and Social Cohesion in Europe) is Europe's largest interdisciplinary research network in the field of migration, integration and diversity studies.

The research network currently consists of 46 research institutes from almost all European countries and from various disciplines, including economics, political science, sociology, law, demography, public administration, social geography and history.

The network provides 'seed funding' to international and interdisciplinary research clusters. IMISCOE has become the leading supporter of Open Access publishing in this research area.

IMISCOE Research

The Network supports and maintains a broad range of research initiatives in line with the special expertise of its members. The development of common lines of study is primarily research-driven.

The IMISCOE Research Network derives its relevance for society in general and for policy and politics in particular from its theory-based, analytical contributions. Furthermore to promote specific research ideas and niches (including a number of established Standing Committees). Currently the network supports research clusters.

IMISCOE Standing Committees

Standing Committees involve research clusters that have been established for a longer period of time, and have a broad programme of activities and a broad audience that they serve within IMISCOE. Visit our website for more information:

IMISCOE Publications

– Comparative Migration Studies

Comparative Migration Studies (CMS) is an international, peer-reviewed open access journal that provides a platform for articles that focus on comparative research in migration, integration, and race and ethnic relations. It presents readers with an extensive collection of comparative analysis, including studies between countries, groups, levels, and historical periods. CMS publishes research based on qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods studies. Contributions cover a wide disciplinary angle across the social sciences and the humanities. We are looking for articles that push present understanding of migration integration, and race and ethnic relations in new conceptual, methodological, and empirical directions.

Topics include, but are not limited to: migration and integration in relation to citizenship, national identity, refugee and asylum policy, social movements (pro and anti-immigration), gender, racialization, whiteness, ethnic and religious diversity and (post)colonialism.

IMISCOE Research Series

Established to promote research emanating from the IMISCOE Research Network, the IMISCOE Research Series has since become one of the main migration related publication series in Europe and beyond, with over 80 titles published since its launch in 2006. It presents empirical and theoretical scholarship addressing issues of migration management and migrant integration in Europe, from different disciplinary perspectives, and with a special interest in new and innovative topics and methods of research. Authored by experts in the field, the works provide a rich reference source for scholars, students, and stakeholders.

The series is published under the editorial supervision of the IMISCOE Editorial Committee which includes leading scholars from all over Europe. Book proposals and manuscripts are rigorously peer reviewed by at least two independent reviewers. Thanks to the generous contribution of the IMISCOE network most of the books in the IMISCOE Research Series are available in Open Access through Springer.

Competitive Call for Book Proposals

Each year IMISCOE and Springer announce the Competitive Call for Book Proposals for ground-breaking new manuscripts (authored or edited). The Call is open topic. The selected best book proposal will be offered a contract and a total open access fee waiver. All other proposals submitted under the call can be considered for publication under the standard conditions of the series.

Manuscripts invited now!

The Annual COMPETITIVE CALL FOR BOOK PROPOSALS for the IMISCOE Springer Series opens at the IMISCOE Annual Conference on 26 June 2019. Deadline for submissions: Thursday 31 October 2019. RESULTS will be announced in early DECEMBER 2019.

The selected best book proposal will be offered a contract and a total Open Access fee waiver. All other proposals submitted under the call can be considered for publication under the standard conditions of the series. Authors or editors submitting under this Call should plan to have their full manuscript ready by the end of 2020.

IMISCOE Short Readers

IMISCOE and Springer are launching a new series of short readers on key issues in European migration studies. Written by both senior experts and emerging young scholars, this series covers key theoretical issues, uses case study examples from across Europe, and outlines main research and policy questions for the future, in plain language. These readers offer the best companion to undergraduate and graduate students in migration, ethnicity, citizenship but also European Union studies and wider sociology, politics, geography, social policy, demography and history courses. While several topics have been commissioned already (first titles of the series will launch in early 2020), feel free to propose a topic to the IMISCOE Editorial Committee for consideration. For the Short Migration Readers you can find the IMISCOE Short READER Proposal form online:

Publisher

The IMISCOE Research Series is published by Springer. Springer is a leading global scientific, technical and medical publisher, providing researchers in academia, scientific institutions and corporate R&D departments with quality content through innovative information, products and services. It has one of the strongest STM and Humanities & Social Sciences eBook collections and archives, as well as a comprehensive range of hybrid and open access journals. We are very proud to be IMISCOE's publisher of choice for the publication of their open access book series IMISCOE Research Series and their open access journal Comparative Migration Studies.

Springer is part of SpringerNature, a global publisher that serves and supports the research community. SpringerNature aims to advance discovery by publishing robust and insightful science, supporting the development of new areas of research and making ideas and knowledge accessible around the world. As part of SpringerNature, Springer sits alongside other trusted brands like Nature Research, BioMed Central and Palgrave Macmillan.

PhD Assembly and Workshops

As in the past years, the IMISCOE Annual Conference hosts a series of activities tailored for PhDs, aimed at meeting their specific needs. All the PhD activities will take place during the morning of the first day of the Annual Conference: Wednesday, 26 June 2019, between 8.30 and 12.15. Organized by fellow PhD students, the PhD Annual Meeting provides an opportunity for any interested PhD student to learn about the PhD Network, get to know and exchange with other PhD students as well as with senior researchers, and, last but not least, to acquire and train academic skills of relevance both during and after a PhD.

Here is the program: we will start the conference with breakfast and coffee, which will be kindly provided, and we will then open the PhD Assembly. After the Assembly, we will have our four workshops:

8.00 – 8.30	Breakfast & Coffee Niagara building- in the corridor outside rooms A0306 and A0307
8.30 – 9.00	PhD Network Assembly Niagara building, room A0306
9.00 – 10.30	Preparing an effective abstract for a conference Niagara building, room A0306	Intergenerational Feedback session Niagara building, room A0307
10.30 – 10.45	Coffee Break Niagara building- in the corridor outside rooms A0306 and A0307
10.45 – 12.15	Teaching Controversial Migration and Integration Issues Niagara building, room A0306	How to get research funding Niagara building, room A0307
12.15 – 13.30	Lunch
13.30	Start of the Conference

1. Breakfast and PhD Network Assembly , 08.00 – 09.00, Niagara Building – A0306

After a good cup of coffee, we will begin with the PhD Network Assembly, which is open to anyone who wishes to know what the Network is and how it functions and possibly wants to get involved! Please do come, even if you have never heard of the Network before and it is the first time you come to the IMISCOE Annual Conference, as you will learn about the work and organisation of the PhD Network. All interested PhDs are invited to discuss current developments in IMISCOE and raise issues concerning PhDs during the assembly. If you're interested in becoming an active member in the PhD Network, this is the place to be!

2. Preparing an effective abstract for a conference, 09.00 – 10.30, Niagara Building – A0306

Struggling every time you need to put together an abstract for a Conference? As short as an abstract is, making sure that all the right “components” of an effective abstract are there may not be such a self-evident task. We will tackle this topic through an interactive session, with exercises and simulations. This workshop is specifically tailored for PhDs in the early phases of their PhD life who want to learn more about the “art” of writing good abstracts that can make it through the selective procedures of large conferences such as the IMISCOE one (but is of course open also to those who need a “refresh”!). Participation is limited to those who registered for the workshop via the Conference Registration form.

3. “Intergenerational Feedback” Session, 09.00 – 10.30, Niagara Building – A0307

Would you like to receive feedback on your research project or advice on your future career plans and options? Then the Intergenerational Feedback Session is what you should attend, as it connects PhD students with experienced scholars for dialogues across generations, in an interdisciplinary and international context. The aim is to provide an open, safe and accessible platform for constructive discussions, where PhD students receive feedback from experienced scholars on theoretical and methodological frameworks related to their research project, exchange comments with their peers about their respective research endeavours and share insights and possibilities for career options. In an informal, yet productive, setting, the session will take the form of small group discussions – groups of PhDs will be formed and matched to a senior scholar with whom the group will discuss. PhDs at any stage of their research are welcome! Participation based on a Call issued earlier in 2019.

4. Teaching Controversial Migration and Integration Issues, 10.45 – 12.15, Niagara Building – A0306

Many PhDs have to teach courses or seminars while they undertake their research – a task that is not so easy to manage. Furthermore, PhDs students involved in teaching migration studies possibly face greater challenges, as they deal with emotionally charged and highly politicized topics like international migration and integration. Indeed, the growing diversity within today's classrooms underlines the necessity for changes in attitude and pedagogical practices. The aim of this workshop is to provide insights into how to teach controversial and sensitive topics on migration-related issues which touch on strong identifications of either students or ourselves. We wish to provide an open space for discussion and reflection, by stimulating reflexivity, sharing experiences and resources (teaching materials and tools) and by exchanging about ideas for innovative teaching formats. Aided by a researcher who has faced the challenge of teaching migration studies in multicultural classrooms, the session aims to be interactive and dynamic. The workshop invites all doctoral students both with and without teaching experience, but the number of places is limited! Participation is limited to those who registered for the workshop via the Conference Registration form.

5. How to get research funding, 10.45 – 12.15, Niagara Building – A0307

We all know too well that career advancement in academia is based on developing research proposals and applying for funding, be it as individual researchers or as members of large research projects. And we all know too well how difficult it is to understand what is needed to write successful applications. This workshop will deal with the many issues evolving around the daunting question “how can I get funding for my research?” and will be particularly relevant for those who are almost done with their PhD and are thinking about “what next?”. Participation is limited to those who registered for the workshop via the Conference Registration form.

The IMISCOE PhD Network

The IMISCOE PhD Network aims to strengthen research and network opportunities for doctoral researchers in the field of migration through several activities and initiatives run by PhDs for other fellow PhDs.

Working Groups

The activities run by the PhD Network are planned and steered by four different Working Groups:

- the Workshop Group organizes “PhD workshops” on a yearly basis, at each IMISCOE Annual Conference. The workshops are specifically tailored for PhDs’ needs (how to get research funding, how to get published, how to network, how to write an effective conference abstract...);
- the Networking Group aims to connect PhDs working on migration, and to stimulate personal development by bridging PhD students with experienced scholars through the “Intergenerational Feedback session”, which it organizes at every IMISCOE Annual Conference;
- the Teaching Group wishes to provide a framework for PhDs involved in teaching activities, in order for them to exchange, learn, inspire and motivate each other;
- the Blog Group runs the IMISCOE PhD Blog, a platform to share relevant insights from the field of migration research as well as advice on career development, in a monthly fashion.

The PhD Representative coordinates the work carried out by the working groups, and functions as the contact point between the PhD Network and the IMISCOE Network.

Assembly, workshops and social gathering at the IMISCOE Annual Conference 2019 – Malmö

We will have a “PhD morning” on Wednesday, 26th June between, before the start of the Conference sessions: we invite you to join our PhD Assembly and PhD workshops between 08.30-12.15. – breakfast, coffee and lunch are provided. Please see the programme (page 227–229) for more details. We also invite all PhDs to an informal event on Wednesday evening. Check out the PhD Network’s Facebook and Twitter for info on when and where.

Do you want to get engaged in the PhD Network?

If you would like to learn more about the PhD Network and the activities of the Working Groups, or would like to get engaged in one of them, please send an email to phdnetwork@imiscoe.org, or get in touch with the PhD Representative Giulia Mezzetti, or with Working Groups coordinators, during the conference. We do need committed new members, willing to contribute to the continuous development of the PhD Network! And don’t forget to join us on Facebook, (<https://www.facebook.com/groups/IMISCOEphdNETWORK/?fref=ts>). ## IMISCOE Events

Throughout the year numerous IMISCOE events are organized, in the context of research clusters, publication events, PhD training, etc. The most important item on the annual agenda of IMISCOE is the Annual Conference (<https://www.imiscoe.org/events/annual-conference>) which has been organised every year since 2004 by one of IMISCOE's member institutes. Last year's 15th Annual Conference took place in Barcelona. In 2020 the 17th Annual Conference will be organized by: the Université du Luxembourg, Luxembourg (FLSHASE).

IMISCOE spring conference – 2020

Another annual event is the Spring Conference (<https://www.imiscoe.org/events/spring-conference>). Next year's spring conference will be organized by the University of Lisboa, Portugal (IGOT-UL)

Besides the IMISCOE annual conferences, various events are organised throughout the year. At least once a year a smaller academic seminar is organised by one of the IMISCOE member institutes. In addition, numerous events are organised by the various Research Groups and Standing Committees.

About Malmö

Malmö is one of Sweden's fastest growing metropolitan centers. Driving this growth is immigration, both from abroad and from other parts of Sweden, and the fact that many families choose to remain in the city after having children. Malmö today is a natural hub for people and cultures from worldwide. The city's inhabitants come from around 170 countries and speak some 150 different languages. This diversity is one of Malmö's key assets and creates the basis for a rich cultural life. It also equips Malmö to perform well in an ever-more globalized world.

Things to do in Malmö

Malmö city is a vibrant marketplace full of exciting shops, tasty restaurants and cozy cafes! Tourist information can be found at <https://www.malmocity.se/en/arets-butik-cafe-och-restaurang/>

How to register

When you arrive at Malmö University, we advise you to register and pick up your conference badge straight away. This badge will grant you access to all conference events and facilities. You may find the registration desks in the entrance hall of Niagara Building. When our staff welcomes you to the conference, they will hand out the official conference bags. In these bags you will find the conference booklet, as well as other useful information.

For security reasons, the conference venue is not allowed to store any luggage, we therefore recommend you to leave your luggage by your accommodations beforehand, or at the nearby Malmö central station.

Food and beverages

Your conference badge will serve as your ticket to coffee breaks, lunches, and the dinner, all of which are included in the conference fee. Please wear your badge at all times during the conference. Lunches will be served at the 1st and 2nd floor in Niagara Building. Coffee and tea will be served between sessions at the atrium, the 3rd, and the 5th floor in Niagara Building.

Conference Dinner – Thursday 27 June, 2019, from 19.30 PM

The conference dinner will be at Malmö Slagthuset (Jörgen Kocksgatan 7, Malmö). It is within walking distance from Malmö University Niagara Building.

Malmö's old slaughterhouse was designed by Malmö's former city architect Salomon Sörensen and was built in 1904. It was actually a working slaughterhouse for about 65 years. Between 1988 and 1993 extensive renovations and additions were carried out. Today, the old slaughter halls have been converted into a theater, conference, restaurant, dance hall and entertainment center.

WIFI

You may access the internet via EDUROAM or our wireless network "MAUGUEST" (No guest account needs to be created.) You can log on with Facebook, Twitter, Google or via SMS activation. The connection requires renewed activation every 12 hours.

How to:

1. Connect to the Wi-Fi named MAUGUEST

NEW IN 2018!

MIGRATION AND SOCIETY Advances in Research

Editors: Mette Louise Berg, Elena Fiddian-Qasimiyeh and Johanna L. Waters, all of University College London

Migration and Society is a new interdisciplinary peer-reviewed journal advancing debate about emergent trends in all types of migration. We invite work that situates migration in a wider historical and societal context, including attention to experiences and representations of migration, critical theoretical perspectives on migration, and the social, cultural, and legal embeddedness of migration. Global in its scope, we particularly encourage scholarship from and about the global South as well as the North.

Migration and Society addresses both dynamics and drivers of migration; processes of settlement and integration; and transnational practices and diaspora formation. We publish theoretically informed and empirically based articles of the highest quality, especially encouraging work that interrogates and transcends the boundaries between the social sciences and the arts and humanities.

Europe at the Crossroads Confronting Populist, Nationalist and Global Challenges

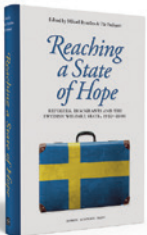

The extreme right wing is on the rise. And there are signs that part of the political mainstream in Europe, the US, and beyond is considering going along with far-right populist parties and their divisive, ethno-nationalist programmes. Europe at the Crossroads is an urgent scholarly response to the sociopolitical challenges that far-right programmes pose to the idea of a more egalitarian world. It offers an interdisciplinary explanation and critique of the dynamics of the far right in Europe.

Museums in a Time of Migration Rethinking Museums' Roles, Representations, Collections, and Collaborations

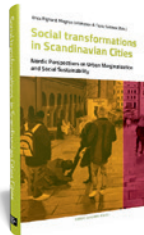

Museums, being important educational institutions, not only reflect society, but what they display has the potential to affect our understanding of the world. When museums become places where people can explore the realities of migration, transnational connections, and human rights, they can help drive positive social change, encouraging solidarity and sustainable development. In Museums in a time of migration, leading scholars and museum curators reflect on museums' engagement in migration issues.

Reaching a State of Hope Refugees, Immigrants and the Swedish Welfare State, 1930–2000

International migration and migrants have long been among the most debated topics in Europe and around the globe. How do immigrant policies differ between different nation-states? How are migrants and refugees met? Conflicting opinions on migration are not new. History gives ample examples of varying solutions and views. In Reaching a State of Hope, the authors shed new light on refugee and labour immigration to twentieth-century Sweden.

Social Transformations in Scandinavian Cities Nordic Perspectives on Urban Marginalisation and Social Sustainability

Scandinavian countries are generally associated with extensive public services and low levels of poverty. However, reality has changed dramatically over the last three decades, and Scandinavia's cities now share many of the problems and challenges familiar from other Western cities. How do the welfare states handle these global societal transformations? In Social Transformations in Scandinavian Cities, researchers highlight the changing face of social sustainability and social disintegration in Scandinavian cities.
